

Fongshan New City originally had six city gates, six emplacements, double layer walls of soil and bamboo, and the moat. After years, only one city gate and three emplacements still remain, which are listed as remnants of Fongshan County and designated as municipal monuments.

📍 Chenglan Emplacement

The Chenglan emplacement has an irregular octagonal shape. One can still see the embrasures on the arc wall extending from the emplacement. The view is vast from the emplacement towards the moat.

📍 Intersection of Fuxing Street and Lizhi Street

📍 Syunfong Emplacement

The wall of the Syunfong Emplacement is curved, with clay scroll inscriptions on the left and right of the stone tablet, adding an artistic touch to the cold emplacement.

📍 Fongyi Academy

Fongyi Academy had a total of 37 rooms when it was built in 1814. It originally enshrined Lord Wenchang, Lord Kuichang and Lord Cangsheng and is the largest existing historical tutoring academy in Taiwan. After the renovation in 2009, the chibi version of the statues was added. There are also exhibition spaces for displaying historical relics.

📍 Fongshan Chenguang Taoist Temple

Two unique cultural relics can be seen inside the Temple: the "You are here" plaque and the "big abacus". "You are here" has the meaning that sooner or later everyone will have to report to the god Chenghuang; and the "big abacus" is a characterization of the calculation of the good and bad in one's life. The octagonal inner court painted with the Eight Immortals is very rare and has great historical and artistic values.

📍 Fongshan Longshan Buddhist Temple

With more than three hundred years of history, Fongshan Longshan Buddhist Temple has been designated a Class 2 historical monument. Avalokitesvara is worshiped here. This Temple preserved the rich and complete traditional temple architecture and construction methods, and is the art palace of traditional artisans.

📍 Fongshan Shuangcihting Temple

More than three hundred years ago, the god Avalokitesvara was invited from Putuoshan and was worshipped here as the main god. At the time the temple was called "Guanyinting" ("Temple of Avalokitesvara"). In 1753, the front hall was built; Tianshang Shengmu ("Holy Heavenly Mother") was invited from Quanzhou and was worshipped here. The believers felt mercy from both deities and thus changed the name to "Shuangcihting" ("Temple of Two Mercifuls").

📍 Weiwuying Metro Park

Originally military ground, it transformed into a metro park after the army moved away. On the south side of the Park are the South Lake, Summer Promenade, Children's Playground, former recruit training plaza and Scenic Overlook built on the original central water tower, where one can overlook the entire area.

📍 National Kaohsiung Center for the Arts (Weiwuying)

Inspired by the lush banyan trees in the Park, the Dutch architect Francine Houben created the largest venue for performing music and arts in East Asia. The outdoor theater is located on the south side of the main structure. With the sky as the curtain, the design breaks through the general ideas of performing spaces and created a non-typical theater space for everyone to enjoy a greater diversity of performances.

📍 Huangpu New Village

Fongshan, where R.O.C. Military Academy, the Army Infantry Training Commanding and Infantry School, and Chung Cheng Armed Forces Preparatory School are located, is a district of strategic importance for the army in Southern Taiwan. Opposite to R.O.C. Military Academy is Huangpu New Village, where Taiwan's first military dependents' village has been retained to this day. It is also one of the few former military housing communities during the Japanese colonial period in Taiwan that have been preserved. Today, many stores of young entrepreneurs and homestays have settled in here, bringing new life to the military dependents' village.

In early days, Niasong District was famous for its ponds and green hills. Among them, Chengcing Lake is the most famous one with its southern Chinese waterside pavilion; therefore, it is also reputed as the "Little West Lake". The green trails around the Lake and winding paths are perfect for hiking, jogging, camping and outings. Surrounded by the baseball field, golf courses and the medical center, it is an ideal healthful leisure Park in the hearts of the locals.

📍 Niasong Wetland

The Park focuses mainly on natural ecology education and is supplemented by sightseeing and recreation. With the recorded 89 species of birds, more than 270 species of insects, and more than 300 species of plants, the Park boasts rich and diverse ecological resources. Visitors can observe mallards, red-crowned waterfowls, small egrets, and so on in the wetland waters when walking along the boardwalks.

📍 Chengcing Lake

The Park has winding paths with views, lush forests and beautiful scenery. The most famous eight scenic points in Chengcing Lake are: Kansu Plum Awakening in Spring, Bend Bridge Fishing for the Moon, Viewing Lotus from the Shore of the Willow, Viewing the Sea from the Hilltop, Sounds of Animals from Deep Forest, Pleasant Atmosphere of Lake, Hill Three Pavilions Tour, and Gold pours out from Pengdao. The simple and unsophisticated Chinese garden design merged with natural landscapes of mountains and rivers provides visitors with a relaxing and peaceful retreat to hearts.
